Up Front

Anyone believing the bromide about rules being made to be broken might be confused by what happened to Scenes from a Marriage, which premieres on Home Box Office this month.

Starring Liv Ullmann, Erland Josephson and Bibi Andersson, written, produced and directed by Ingmar Bergman, the film has drawn extravagant critical acclaim. The National Society of Film Critics bestowed its Best Picture, Best Actress, Best Supporting Actress and Best Screenplay accolades.

But controversy raged when the Motion Picture Academy disqualified it under the rules for the annual Oscars. The reason: Scenes from a Marriage originally was a six-part Swedish television series. Although reshaped into a monumental theatrical feature, the Academy resisted all attempt to nominate it.

Now presented by HBO, the theatrical version is the latest in a lengthening catalog of Liv Ullmann appearances on the pay TV network: The Emigrants, The New Land, Lost Horizon, Zandy's Bride, The Abdication, all enhancing the Ullmann image in the past 13 months.

Born in Tokyo where her father was a civil engineer, Liv spent most of World War II in Toronto, returning to her native Norway after her father died and the German occupation of her homeland ended. Beginning her career on the stage at 17, she has had her most marked successes in films directed by Bergman.

The film will be presented at times during its run both with dubbed English dialog and with subtitles to translate the original Swedish sound track.

A Memorable Month—Scenes highlights what shapes up as a most unusual HBO movie month. In addition to more conventional Hollywood-variety films, the schedule includes Animal Crackers, second feature ever made by the Marx Brothers, Cry of the Wild, a most unusual animal documentary, and Jeremiah Johnson, a picture first seen on HBO in November 1973 but being brought back on the crest of a tremendously successful theatrical revival.

Milestones—Two events affecting HBO's future development deserve passing mention here.

□ In mid/April, the pay TV network signed on its 100,000th subscriber.

□ On April 11, HBO announced plans to expand the network from the Northeast into other areas via orbiting domestic satellite. HBO later this year expects to be feeding its programs to earth stations in Florida and during 1976 into other parts of the country. First to commit to installation of earth (receiving) stations are two major cable TV operators, UA-Columbia Cablevision and American Television and Communications.

HBO Spotlights: EMILE ZOLA'S 'NANA'... THE BOB AND RAY COMEDY HOUR

"NANA"—Parisian life in the 1860's is the theme of Emile Zola's famous novel, "NANA", starting on HBO in May. A chapter will be introduced weekly over a five-week period by Brendan Gill, Broadway theatre critic for The New Yorker.

"NANA", produced by BBC-TV, was the subject of a great deal of discussion and controversy when previously shown on public broadcasting stations in the U.S. An adult drama, it will be presented on Tuesday nights at 9:00 P.M. beginning May 13.

Katherine Schofield is featured as Nana, a streetwalker who becomes the toast of Paris and after destroying all around her destroys herself.

"Bob and Ray: The One and Only"—Quite a different vein from that of "NANA" is struck by HBO's Comedy Special for May, "Bob and Ray: The One and Only". For a quarter century, Bob Elliott and Ray Goulding have brought their tongue-in-cheek characterizations of a roster of strange but strangely familiar characters to radio audiences.

In conjunction with Boston Public Broadcasting Station WGBH-TV, HBO now has bottled the unique essence of Bob and Ray in staging this month's Comedy Special for May 11 and 29.

Professor Moffett—Professor Moffett's Science Workshop, a science instructional series educationally validated by the Ontario Educational Communications Authority, premieres in May on HBO. The programs combine entertainment and the natural curiosity of youngsters with solid educational material. Professor Maxwell Moffett, an engineer with extensive theatrical experience, holds the adolescent audience by free give-and-take questions and demonstrations for Claire Ann, 14, and Stuart Bundy, 9.

Martha's Attic—Martha loves animals as much as children. A special 'Attic' program, "Who's Who in the Zoo" will challenge children to recognize as many different animals as they can in a filmed tour of the St. Louis Zoo. Martha also introduces her viewers to a zany mix-'em-up fantasy zoo, "The Annimix Zoo", where kids find a 'Swake' (child of a swan and a snake), a 'Rabbigator' (child of a rabbit and alligator), and the Turdican-doo (guess). The coloring book used on the program will be printed in a limited edition for HBO viewers and will be sent free to those requesting it from Martha. ■

Sports: BILLIE JEAN, CATFISH'S YANKEES ... Karate

May starts a new season for HBO sports fans. With basketball and hockey playoffs phasing out, an exciting summer schedule begins May 1 with a collision between the two teams expected to be top contenders for the American League's Eastern Division Championship, the New York Yankees and The Baltimore Orioles.

HBO's coverage of selected week day Yankee games, begun last season, should be even more exciting this year as the Yanks make their pennant bid strengthened by the addition of pitcher Catfish Hunter and outfielder Bobby Bonds.

Two other staples of last summer's schedule, World Team Tennis and the Professional Bowlers Association tour, will return, but there also are some innovations in store—would you believe karate and rodeo competition?

Billie Jean King, whose name is said to be topped only by Muhammad Ali's for impact on sports followers, gives the New York Sets added impact, too, in World Team Tennis play. HBO will carry the Sets' 20 home matches, which will bring most of the top stars of both men's and women's tennis to the network.

Always on the lookout for something new and different, HBO sports director Marty Glickman is programming the World Karate Championships—5 bouts including a women's bout between Beth Bussey and 19-year-old Cathy Grounds. The "full-contact, no chops barred, no punches pulled" bouts will be seen live from the Nassau Coliseum on May 10th. ■
